Arts and Culture

Bologna has been declared a “Creative City of Music” by UNESCO because music has always been a protagonist, as evidenced by the Accademia Filarmonica, the International Museum and Library of Music, and the 18th-century Teatro Comunale, also for being the birthplace of great performers such as Lucio Dalla, Vasco Rossi and many others.

The City's Porticos, begun in the 11th century to accommodate the growing university population, now stretch over 38 kilometers and are a UNESCO World Heritage Site.
